Teijo Hildén is a promising young painter, currently studying at the Liminka School of Art (founded in 1892).

His skillful brush strokes and his painting style is said to be closely related to the old classical masters.

"Painting is a natural way for me to express myself. I started painting with oil colours as early as age seven and they have stayed in my palette ever since. In recent years I have started using techniques not so familiar to me, such as pastels, watercolours and ink. Observance of colours and shapes forms a strong base for my art and this has evolved over the years."
